BRITAIN'S SEA POWER STRONG

Declared Double That of United States.

EQUALIZATION OF STRENGTH DIFFICULT

Japan Is Far Inferior to America in Naval Strength—Conference Problems.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The United States will take a long naval chance when it enters the forthcoming disarmament conference, according to statistics of naval strength compiled by naval experts for use by the American delegation to the parley.

If the conference should agree to abandon all present building programs and to maintain the navies of the leading nations as they now stand, the United States will lose out for January 1, the United States navy was but half the size of Great Britain's battle fleets and but twice as large as Japan's navy. These comparisons are based on tonnage figures and might be altered by a comparison of fighting efficiency.

If the conference decides to let the present building program continue, then the United States will win.

The present authorizations of the navies of the world would make the navy of the United States equal to that of Great Britain by 1924 and almost double the size of the Japanese navy. Japan's naval program does not begin to approach that of the United States, and even her projected but unauthorized program would not make her navy equal to that of the United States by 1927.

Has Not Advantage.

All of these figures, however, are based on tonnage, and the naval intelligence service has compiled some interesting statistics as to the relative efficiency of the three great navies of the world which do not give the navy of the United States the advantage in fighting efficiency.

At the present time the British navy has supremacy over the American navy in every style of fighting craft, while the United States has supremacy over Japan in battleships and destroyers. By 1924, when the American building program is completed, this condition will have been changed, for the American building program will have been completed, but the American navy, though equal in tonnage strength, will still be outclassed in some of the modern fighting vessels.

If the present programs go through the year 1924 will still find the United States greatly outclassed by Great Britain in light cruisers, battle cruisers, submarines and aircraft carriers. At that time Japan will also outclass the United States in light cruisers and battle cruisers.

Inasmuch as there is a great difference of opinion among naval experts as to the relative value of the battleship and the light cruisers and battle cruisers, it appears from present statistics that the United States stands to be outclassed in major naval weapons by 1924 unless the forthcoming conference decides to put a check upon the present building programs.

Will Ships Be Junked?

Japan's naval program is at the present time largely projected and it would appear from bare statistics the Oriental nation stands to lose more than any other nation as the result of the disarmament conference unless there is an agreement to junk some of the vessels that are already in commission.

If there is to be any destruction of vessels by order of the conference then the United States may again be the loser, for this nation has fewer vessels which it can afford to give up than Great Britain.

Naval experts are bewildered as they attempt to forecast the changes of the American navy at the hands of the disarmament conference and admit that it is going to be a game of chance all around.

DUKE WILL STAR IN MOTION PICTURES

The Duke of Manchester doesn't propose to permit Lady Diana Manners, daughter of the Duke of Rutland, to steal a march on him.

Lady Diana recently startled English society and brought down the displeasure of the queen when she entered the movies. It was announced by Genie Jacobs, New York theatrical agent, that the Duke of Manchester will arrive here in November and start immediately upon a production for the screen in which he is to be starred.

NOTE SENT TO ALLIES BY RUSSIAN SOVIET

Soviet Refuses Permission To Probe Russian Conditions.

Moscow, Sept. 9.—The Russian soviet government has declined to permit the international Russian relief commission, recently appointed by the allied supreme council, to investigate conditions in Russia preparatory to aiding in famine relief. This decision was made known through a note forwarded by M. Chitcherin, the soviet foreign minister, to England, Italy, France and Belgium. The note says the soviet government regards the appointment of Joseph Noulens of France as chairman "as a monstrous sneer at the fate of starving Russia."

BUCKEYE BRIEFS

Lutherans to Meet.

Marion, O., Sept. 9.—The northern Ohio Lutheran synod will meet here Oct. 5 to 11, according to announcement made here.

Sheriff Fires Deputies.

Toledo, Sept. 9.—Deputy Sheriffs Sam Zimmerman and Andrew Szmetko, who were in charge of the Lucas county jail Monday when Joe Urbayfis, Charles Schultz and George Rogers, postoffice bandits, escaped, were dismissed by Sheriff Taylor.

Ford's Rail Plans.

Springfield, O., Sept. 9.—Car repair shops for the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad will be erected in Springfield, Napoleon and other points along the road, eventually, that road equipment may be repaired without loss of time, Henry Ford, owner of the road, announced here.

Natural Gas Turned On.

Lima, O., Sept. 9.—Dispute arose between the city solicitor and the county prosecutor as to who should bring ouster proceedings to force the Lima Gas company to quit business in the municipality before Attorney General Price had announced that it was not his duty to bring the action. While county and city officials are endeavoring to iron out the legal tangle, Lima, Cridersville, Wapakoneta, St. Marys and Celina consumers are again being supplied with natural gas.

BUMPER CORN CROP APPEARS ASSURED

Corn Recovers from Damage Suffered in July.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The department of agriculture's September grain report features the recovery of the corn crop during August from the serious damage sustained from July weather conditions.

Favored with good growing temperatures and plenty of rain in practically the entire corn belt, the production forecast made a jump of 154,000,000 bushels, bringing the indicated production to 3,150,000,000 bushels, or only 48,000,000 bushels less than last year's crop, the largest ever grown. With continued favorable conditions this year's production may yet become a record crop. Indications are that most of the crop is now out of danger from frost.

The wheat crop showed a decline of 5,000,000 with a total of 754,000,000 bushels indicated as this year's harvest. Oats will be a short crop this year, the indicated production having declined 47,000,000 bushels during August, with a total crop of 1,090,000,000 bushels forecast. That is 436,000,000 bushels smaller than last year's crop.

Potatoes showed an increase of 7,000,000 bushels over a month ago, with a total crop of 323,000,000 bushels, but the crop is almost 100,000,000 bushels smaller than last year.

Labor Trust Company Proposed.

St. Louis, Sept. 9.—A labor trust company with the proposed capital listed at $500,000 and a surplus of $125,000, which "would promote the interests of labor," will be ready for business here about the first of next year, according to an announcement by Verne Lacy, former assistant circuit court attorney, who is announced as legal adviser of the organization.

RAILROAD MIRACLE NOT SO, SAYS RAILWAY AGE

Which Conducts Investigation and Gives Figures.

HOW HENRY FORD IS ABLE TO DO THINGS

The "railroad miracle" which Henry Ford is supposed to have wrought by converting the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton from a deficit incurring property to a profit earning railroad in a few months has been due, according to the current issue of the Railroad Age, not to any change in the method of operation but primarily to an increase in the average freight rate per ton per mile. It is pointed out this is due in turn to, first, "a great change in the character of the traffic handled," and, second, "the fact that the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton has been able to use the large volume of traffic originated by the Ford interests to secure large divisions of the through rates on all traffic handled partly over its lines and partly over other lines."

"During the four months September to December, 1920, inclusive, after the present railway rates were fixed," says the Railway Age, "the D. T. & I handled an average of 49,246,000 ton-miles of revenue freight per month and had freight earnings averaging $493,800 a month. In the months of April, May and June, 1921, the road handled an average freight business of 37,093,000 ton-miles a month and earned from it an average of $634,203 a month. In other words, its average freight business in these three months was almost twenty-five per cent less than in the last four months of 1920, while its average monthly freight earnings were over forty per cent. greater.

"This large increase in freight earnings, in spite of a big decline in the total freight handled, could have been due to only one cause, and that was an increase in the average rate. And there was a very extraordinary increase in its average rate per ton per mile—a thing to which public attention never has been called before. In the last four months of 1920 its average rate was one per cent. per ton per mile. The average rate per ton per mile in April, May and June, 1920, was 1.33 cents, eighty-eight per cent. greater than in September, October, November and December, 1920. The average rate of all the railways in the country is only 1.23 cents.

"To what was this remarkable increase in the average rate per ton per mile due? Chiefly to two things. First, to a great change in the character of the traffic handled. Mr. Ford began giving his railway practically all of his freight business; and the freight handled directly and indirectly for his motor works consists largely of relatively high grade commodities which pay a rate much higher than the average. Meantime, the amount of coal handled by the railroad greatly decreased. Coal being a bulky and cheap commodity, it pays a rate much smaller than the average. This change in the character of the traffic alone would have caused a large increase in the railway's average rate.

"Secondly, the D. T. & I. has been able to use the large volume of traffic originated by the Ford interests to secure larger divisions of the through rates on all traffic hauled partly over its line and partly over other railways, and the great bulk of the D. T. & I's business consists of this through traffic. Both the change in the character of the traffic and the larger divisions of the through rates obtained by the D. T. & I have tended to increase its average rate per ton per mile, and the only really great change which had been made on the D. T. & I. up to July 1 was in the conditions which determined its average rate per ton per mile.

"But how about the reduction of twenty per cent. in its local rates and the advance in the wages of its employes which have been so widely advertised? Neither of these went into effect until July 1 or later, and therefore neither of them had anything whatever to do with the increases in the railway's net earnings which have been so widely ejploited. We shall have to get later data than are now available before anybody can say what is the effect of these changes in important policies.

"It may be said, however, that Mr. Ford is so completely convinced of the desirability of a general reduction in rates that he has proposed that a reduction of twenty per cent. be made in the rates of all railroads. It is not our purpose to impugn Mr. Ford's motives, but there are certain important facts about this proposed reduction in rates which are pertinent. The freight earnings of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton are now running at the rate of approximately $3,000,000 a year. Therefore, other things remaining equal, a reduction of twenty per cent. in them would reduce the road's earnings by about $1,600,000 a year. On the other hand, the freight bills paid by the Ford industries to all the railways amount to from at least $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 a year. Therefore, a reduction of twenty per cent. in freight rates by all the railways would reduce the freight bills of the Ford Motor company by $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 a year. In other words, Mr. Ford as a shipper would be sure to gain millions of dollars more by a reduction in rates than he could possibly lose as a railroad owner. Most of the other railways of the country are not intimately connected with large manufacturing concerns which would save millions of dollars annually by a reduction of their freight bills.

"The Railway Age had its doubts as to whether even Mr. Ford could strike the stone of railroad operation and make floods of profits immediatedly burst forth. He has demonstrated in the manufacturing business that in certain ways he is one of the greatest genuises of the age. His success in the automobile business has been such as to indicate that if there is any man in any other line of business in this country who could step into the railroad business and soon gain extraordinary results, it is Henry Ford. We are skeptical, however, as to whether it was possible within the short time he had owned the D. T & I. for even Mr. Ford to work such a miracle as was attributed to him.

"The results of an investigation made upon the ground and of a study of the official figures regarding the operation of the D. T & I show that under the Ford management, the financial results of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton have been very greatly improved. They also show that no miracle has been worked. The results obtained thus far have been due almost entirely to the circumstance that the ownership of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton has been acquired by one of the largest manufacturers in the country, and that Mr. Ford has used his position as a very large shipper to do things on the D. T & I. which neither he nor anybody else could have done without being such a large shipper. The Detroit, Toledo & Ironton now has much the same relationship to the Ford Motor Car company that the Duluth & Iron Range, the Duluth, Missabe & Northern and the Bessemer & Lake Erie have to the United States Steel corporation. These steel corporation railways have been for many years among the most prosperous railways in America. They have been very well managed, but their prosperity has been largely due to the fact that they have been owned by an industrial concern which controls a vast amount of freight.

"Meantime, no man who is capable of studying the facts about the management and operation of a railroad and drawing rational conclusions from them will say that Mr. Ford has as yet worked a miracle on the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton."

HE SAYS FIRST FOREIGN MISSIONARY IS CHRIST

Rev. George M. Landis Heard by Baptist Association.

WHICH CLOSES ITS MEETINGS LAST NIGHT

Reading of Bible Great Incentive to Missionary Endeavor, Rev. Mr. Landis Declares.

Thursday afternoon's session of the Marion Baptist association meetings at the Emanuel Bapist church on north Main street, was marked by as varied a program as any yet held. The speakers included missionaries from widely separated lands, special music and a missionary sermon.

The session opened with thirty minutes of devotional service led by Mrs. Langstaff, of Richwood. A solo was rendered by Mrs. W. D. Clark, of Trinity Baptist church.

The opening address was by Mrs. S. D. Bawden, a returned missionary from India. Mrs. Bawden told of her work, of the work yet to be done and denounced the position of those who objected to the assistance given to missionary work in India by the British government.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Bawden's address, Miss Gwynn Sanders, of Richwood, gave a fifteen minute program of special musical numbers and readings.

This was followed by a missionary address by Rev. T. J. Latta, of Granville, former missionary to Burma. In his address Rev. Mr. Latta said that the needs of the foreign countries were not political but religious and that Christianity would solve every problem.

Rev. Mr. Landis Speaks.

The final address on the afternoon program was delivered by Rev. George M. Landis, Marion. The subject of Mr. Landis' sermon was "The First Foreign Missionary." He said in part: "The first foreign missionary was Jesus Christ. Perhaps nothing, outside of the reading of the Bible, is a greater incentive to missionary endeavor than the reading of the lives and experiences of those great missionaries, such as Moffet, Livingstone, Judson, Carey, Taylor and others.

"The word missionary comes from the word 'mitto,' meaning sent. Every true missionary is sent by God. God sent forth his son to a far distant land, even as missionaries today go forth to far distant land. In many churches God's commission is a dead letter. The cry is to civilize, rather than to evangelize; to make the world a better place for the natural man, rather than to save men from the condemnation which has been pronounced upon him. It is wrong to consider, 'that Christ was,' for Christ is and some day will return. In the light of the gracious truth of the return of our Master let us spend our lives in his service, counting not our lives dear unto ourselves, yielding them freely into the nail-pierced hands of our Savior, the First Foreign Missionary."

Evening Service.

The evening service was in charge of Miss Zoe E. Barnthouse, of Upper Sandusky. It opened at 7 o'clock, with a song serice led by Rev. R. E. Brown. Mrs. Cora Gossler, director of childrens work, gave a talk on, 'A Forward Look.' Mrs. C. M. Boord, spoke on, 'A Forward Look for the Bible-Schools. Mr. Dale Gorman spoke on, 'A Forward Look,' outlining plans for work for the coming year in Young People's work. Along with Mr. Gorman's speech, a review of the benefits obtained at the Baptist Assembly at Granville this summer and a number of songs in honor of Granville were given.

The treasurer's report was read and the final address on the association program was delivered by Rev. Mr. Landis on, 'The Work, the Worker and the Way.' He said in part:

"The need of the world today is two-fold; the needs of the saved and the needs of the unsaved. The saved need spiritual growth, christian service, and development in devotional life. The unsaved need salvation, rather than amusement, and Jesus Christ as a personal Savior more than entertainment. The work is to meet these needs. The workers must be saved and the way is to get the people out and the truth in.

PROBE INTO STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT

Sought by Marion County Farm Bureau.

Action looking to an investigation of the state highway department with particular reference to the methods employed in awarding contracts and the purchase of road-building materials was taken up at the regular meeting of the executive committee of the Marion County Farm bureau Thursday night. It also was decided to dispatch a letter to Governor Harry L. Davis urging the discontinuance of road construction at present prices.

A motion requesting officials of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation to conduct an investigation of the workings of the state highway department was adopted by the committee. A number of the members expressed the opinion that present prices are greatly in excess of what they should be.

Enforcement of the Burke bill regulating the size of loads hauled over improved roads also came in for its share of discussion. The executive board appointed a special committee to meet with the county commissioners and the county surveyor regarding plans for enforcing this act. This committee is composed of H. H. Berringer, Charles Allen and Walter Williams.

M. K. Hemingway, Columbus, representative of an implement manufacturing firm, presented a plan for distributing implements to the farmers by pooling orders in car load lots and taking the machinery direct from the cars. He stated the machinery would be handled through an approved county distributor and claimed the method would greatly reduce the overhead selling cost. The matter is to be referred to the township bureaus for discussion and action.

BASEBALL

Chances Slim.

New York, Sept. 9.—Cleveland's chances of winning another American league pennant were gloomy today, as the Indians started their final swing around the circle at St. Louis. This Speaker's champions have the toughest kind of an assignment ahead of them. They must tour the East after finishing with the Browns, who are going great guns at the present time and with their pitchers in shaky condition, it will be a miracle if they beat out the Yanks. Miller Huggins' team, with pitchers in tip-top form and the schedule all in its favor, looked like a certainty for the pennant, today and betting along the local baseball Rialto was all in favor the Yankees. The National league race is still in doubt. With only a half game separating the Giants and Pirates, there was no certainty as to when the race will be over. New York must finish the season on the road and the Pirates have all the best of the schedule with most of their games to be played at home. The Pirates have one tough hurdle to take, however. They must go to St. Louis for five games with the fast stepping Cardinals and unless they can hold the Cards off they may find themselves up against it. Branch Rickey's team, with pitchers in fine shape and going like a house afire at the present time, probably is the strongest club in the National league at the present time.

Tagging the Bases.

Efforts of the Braves to cinch a niche in the first division were halfway rewarded for a half-way effort yesterday. Boston managed to break even in a double bill with the tail-ending Phillies.

The Yanks lost to Philadelphia's other cellarite crowd but still hold a grip on the league leadership.

Meanwhile the 1920 champion Indians missed a chance to edge up on the Yanks when they took a beautiful pasting from the Tigers.

Turn about was fair play for Chicago fans, the Cubs winning from the Reds, while the White Sox lost to St. Louis.

Babe Ruth made history repeat itself, yesterday, when he clouted his fifty third home run off Rommell, the same pitcher he hit for his fifty-third on the same date a year ago.

Wadsworth Here Next Sunday.

The Troy baseball team which was scheduled to play the local team, Sunday, wired Thursday afternoon that it could not come. After some efforts the local management were fortunate in being able to book the Wadsworth club for a return date. Wadsworth has been wanting to get revenge on the locals and the manager stated over the phone that he would bring a club that would be sufficiently strong enough to even matters.

When Wadsworth played here before the locals were victorious by a count of five to nothing, all the runs being scored in one inning as a result of an error and the locals bunching four of their six hits with a base on balls. Calmar Troy, a former Marion boy will have charge of the Wadsworth team and will come strong. The locals are going strong at present and with the fans giving them encouraging support, they are confident they will be able to take the visitors into camp.

BABE'S HEART SET ON BRINGING HOME BACON

For New York Fans Supporting American League.

RUTH WON'T SACRIFICE PENNANT FOR HOME RUNS

Gotham Fans Entitled to Flag and He'll Do All He Can To Win It.

[BY BABE RUTH.]

New York, Sept. 9.—To J. L. B.: "Put this down—participation in the world series will actually mean money out of my pocket."

J. L. B. is a representative fan who has just called me to time for an article written a week ago today. He objects to this statement—"a pennant and a cut in the World Series is more tempting than home runs."

My critic backs fault with my desire to share in the gate receipts of the world series and says that it is just such a commercial spirit among some ballplayers that is hurting the game with the public.

"Don't forget," he writes, "that the fans expect to see you knock home runs just the same as they expect to see Nick Altrock play the clown. That's what they pay their money for. It is very selfish of you to put your desire for "a cut in the world series" above the wishes of thousands of fans who support you through the box office."

Pennant for Yankees.

First of all let us say that above anything else it is the wish of those very New York fans that has set my heart on helping to bring a pennant to the Yankees.

For twenty-one years the New York fans have supported the American league club without reward. Great players have come and gone, the management has spent freely and the club as generally been a fighting outfit. But through the breaks and fortunes of base ball something has repeatedly stopped the Yanks just short of the goal.

All these years the fans have remained loyal. This season we have been nosed in and out of first place six times, but the fans have never deserted. It has been nerve racking and disappointing but no more so to the fans than to the boys on the club.

Right here I want to say that although within four of hanging up a new home run record; if by turning my personal efforts from slugging to any other department of the game, I can increase the certainty of a pennant I am ready to abandon home-run and await instructions.

Working Turn in Box.

What I have in mind especially is working my turn in the box and but for the encouraging demonstration last week by Harry Harper that is the very thing I would have requested of Manager Huggins. We have been sorely handicapped without a left hander on the pitching staff. Now if Harper can go along and win we are a lot closer to the pennant but if his injured arm goes back on him and my left wing on the mound will help the Yanks they can have it, although pitching about one game every four days will automatically reduce my number of chances to knock home runs.

And despite J. L. B. and his criticism, home runs mean a lot more to me personally and financially than getting into the world series. Home runs mean advertising and an increased desire among the baseball fans to see me perform in exhibition games. Participation in the world series, even on a winning club, will not net the individual player more than $5,000. If the club loses the purse will be considerably less even if the series goes nine games.

If we don't get in the big series I can go out and play exhibition games and make bigger money. Why nine games would mean about $10,000 to me or twice the "cut in the world series." And I get my "cut" whether the team wins or loses in the exhibition games.

Pennant First.

So when I put a pennant above home runs there can be no motive behind the wish other than a sincere desire of giving the New York fans what they are entitled to. And it is this spirit that actuates every member of the team. Look at Bob Shawkey, ready to pitch his head off every second day if necessary, with an ankle that ought to be in splints. Look at Home Run Baker, nursing a painful strain for three weeks and fighting every day to get back in the lineup. And Chick Fewster the gamest boy in baseball, who took awful chances all summer, with a wound in his skull the like of which killed poor Chapman.

It would be a great thing for baseball to have the Yankees win the pennant. Besides the foregoing reasons it would be a popular victory throughout the country. Eliminating sentiment and local civic pride there is not a city in the American league circuit that would envy the Yankees in the series.

The visiting clubs at the Polo grounds always get fair treatment and tremendous gate receipts. On the road the Yankees are good drawing cards and naturally make money for the local clubs.

And the management of the Yankees has spent large sums of money to bring talent to the club in proportion to the support it has received throughout the circuit.

There are some great clubs in the American league but I think the Yankee fans are due for the big reward.

Increase in production and a decrease in the cost of steel are responsible for a reduction of about $200 in the cost of Studebaker cars, it was announced this morning by C. C. Brown, No. 137 west Church street, local distributor.

The new price on the Studebaker roadster is $1,115; Light Six touring car, $1,150; sedan, $1,850. With a goal of 500 cars a day the company has increased its production to 470 cars a day at the present time which is a decided increase over the 350 cars a day put out by the company some time ago.

Recalling Who They Are.

Marion Stella Platt has been granted a divorce from Francis Platt in the Marion county courts, says Thursday's Galion Inquirer. Mrs Platt was a show girl who appeared in Galion at one time, when she married Platt. She is the woman whose baby was found dead in bed, and for whose death, John Morrow formerly of this city, was found guilty. There was quite a difference in the ages of the Platts and their marriage was not a happy one.

WITH THE PUGS

Dempsey Preferred.

Cleveland, Sept. 9.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, today is preferred choice for referee of the championship featherweight battle to be fought here September 17, between the title holder, Johnny Kilbane, and Danny Frush of Baltimore. In a wire last night to Promoters McGinty and Deutsch, Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, agreed to let Dempsey officiate for $2,000, plus expenses. It is probable that the promoters will accept Dempsey's proposition, providing the Cleveland boxing commission, which meets today, ratifies Dempsey's appointment.

In the line-up of the players in the City Bowling league teams carried in Thursday's Star the name of Archie Williams should have appeared as captain of the Indians instead of E. W. Schoenlaub. Walter S. Guthrie will play with the Giants it was announced at the Y. M. C. A. building. E. C. Higgins has been secured to act as umpire for the City teams this season. The alleys will be ready for practice Saturday.

YOUNGSTOWN NEGRO PAYS THE PENALTY

Executed in Ohio Penitentiary This Morning.

Columbus, Sept. 9.—Electrocution of Sylvester Brown, twenty-seven, negro, took place at the penitentiary here at 1.07 this morning. When Brown met death in the electric chair, he was clasping a Bible and was pleading for God's mercy. He was convicted of murdering Patrolman Alexander R. Warren, Youngstown, May 2, last.

In accordance with custom, Warden Thomas turned down the joint wish of Brown and his wife, Mattie, that she be permitted to witness the electrocution. Previous to the electrocution, the warden announced that he would not knowingly permit relatives of either a murderer or the persons murdered to witness an electrocution.

Brown's body will be shipped to Youngstown for burial. Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Lizzie Washington and a half-sister, Miss Lena Washington, Williamson, South Carolina.

Brown fired four bullets into Officer Warren's body when the patrolman ordered him and three other negroes to halt.

The negroes had robbed a store and were in the neighborhood of the place where they proposed to commit a crime when they were seen by Patrolman Warren. They escaped, but were captured a few hours later.

BASEBALL

New York, Sept. 9.—Cleveland's chances of winning another American league pennant were gloomy today, as the Indians started their final swing around the circle at St. Louis. Tris Speaker's champions have the toughest kind of an assignment ahead of them. They must tour the East after finishing with the Browns, who are going great guns at the present title and with their pitchers in shaky condition, it will be a miracle if they beat out the Yanks. Miller Huggins' team, with pitchers in tip-top form and the schedule all in its favor, looked like a certainty for the pennant, today and betting along the local baseball Rialto was all in favor the Yankees. The National league race is still in doubt. With only a half game separating the Giants and Pirates, there was no certainty as to when the race will be over. New York must finish the season on the road and the Pirates have all the best of the schedule with most of their games to be played at home. The Pirates have one tough hurdle to take, however. They must go to St Louis for five games with the fast stepping Cardinals and unless they can hold the Cards off they may find themselves up against it. Branch Rickey's team, with pitchers in fine shape and going like a house afire at the present time, probably is the strongest club in the National league at the present time.

Tagging the Bases.

Efforts of the Braves to cinch a niche in the first division were halfway rewarded for a half-way effort yesterday. Boston managed to break even in a double bill with the tail-ending Phillies.

The Yanks lost to Philadelphia's other cellarite crowd but still hold a grip on the league leadership.

Turn about was fair play for Chicago fans, the Cubs winning from the Reds, while the White Sox lost to St. Louis.

Babe Ruth made history repeat itself, yesterday, when he clouted his fifty-third home run off Rommell, the same pitcher he hit for his fifty-third on the same date a year ago.

Wadsworth Here Next Sunday.

The Troy baseball team which was scheduled to play the local team, Sunday, wired Thursday afternoon that it could not come. After some efforts the local management were fortunate in being able to book the Wadsworth club for a return date. Wadsworth has been wanting to get revenge on the locals and the manager stated over the phone that he would bring a club that would be sufficiently strong enough to even matters.

When Wadsworth played here before the locals were victorious by a count of five to nothing, all the runs being scored in one inning as a result of an error and the locals bunching four of their six hits with a base on balls. Calmar Iray, a former Marion boy will have charge of the Wadsworth team and will come strong. The locals are going strong at present and with the fans giving them encouraging support, they are confident they will be able to take the visitors into camp.

For New York Fans Supporting American League.

RUTH WON'T SACRIFICE PENNANT FOR HOME RUNS

Gotham Fans Entitled to Flag and He'll Do All He Can To Win It.

[BY BABE RUTH.]

J. L. B. is a representative fan who has just called me to time for an article written a week ago today. He objects to this statement—"a pennant and a cut in the World Series is more tempting than home runs."

My critic lands fault with my desire to share in the gate receipts of the world series and says that it is just such a commercial spirit among some ballplayers that is hurting the game with the public.

"Don't forget," he writes, "that the fans expect to see you knock home runs just the same as they expect to see Nick Altrock play the clown. That's what they pay their money for. It is very selfish of you to put your desire for "a cut in the world series" above the wishes of thousands of fans who support you through the box office."

Pennant for Yankees.

First of all let us say that above anything else it is the wish of those very New York fans that has set my heart on helping to bring a pennant to the Yankees.

For twenty-one years the New York fans have supported the American league club without reward. Great players have come and gone; the management has spent freely and the club as generally been a fighting outfit. But through the breaks and fortunes of base ball something has repeatedly stopped the Yanks just short of the goal.

All these years the fans have remained loyal. This season we have been nosed in and out of first place six times, but the fans have never deserted. It has been nerve racking and disappointing but no more so to the fans than to the boys on the club.

Right here I want to say that although within four of hanging up a new home run record; if by turning my personal efforts from slugging to any other department of the game, I can increase the certainty of a pennant I am ready to abandon home-run and await instructions.

Working Turn in Box.

What I have in mind especially is working my turn in the box and but for the encouraging demonstration last week by Harry Harper that is the very thing I would have requested of Manager Huggins. We have been sorely handicapped without a left hander on the pitching staff. Now if Harper can go along and win we are a lot closer to the pennant but if his injured arm goes back on him and my left wing on the mound will help the Yanks they can have it, although pitching about one game every four days will automatically reduce my number of chances to knock home runs.

And despite J. L. B. and his criticism, home runs mean a lot more to me personally and financially than getting into the world series. Home runs mean advertising and an increased desire among the baseball fans to see me perform in exhibition games. Participation in the world series, even on a winning club, will not net the individual player more than $5,000. If the club loses the purse will be considerably less even if the series goes nine games.

If we don't get in the big series I can go out and play exhibition games and make bigger money. Why nine games would mean about $10,000 to me or twice the "cut in the world series." And I get my "cut" whether the team wins or loses in the exhibition games.

Pennant First.

So when I put a pennant above home runs there can be no motive behind the wish other than a sincere desire of giving the New York fans what they are entitled to. And it is this spirit that actuates every member of the team. Look at Bob Shawkey, ready to pitch his head off every second day if necessary, with an ankle that ought to be in splints. Look at Home Run Baker, nursing a painful strain for three weeks and fighting every day to get back in the lineup. And Chick Fewster the gamest boy in baseball, who took awful chances all summer, with a wound in his skull the like of which killed poor Chapman.

It would be a great thing for baseball to have the Yankees win the pennant. Besides the foregoing reasons it would be a popular victory throughout the country. Eliminating sentiment and local civic pride there is not a city in the American league circuit that would envy the Yankees in the series.

The visiting clubs at th Polo grounds always get fair treatment and tremendous gate receipts. On the road the Yankees are good drawing cards and naturally make money for the local clubs.

And the management of the Yankees has spent large sums of money to bring talent to the club in proportion to the support it has received throughout the circuit.

There are some great clubs in the American league but I think the Yankee fans are due for the big reward.

REDUCTION OF $200 IN PRICE OF STUDEBAKER

Announced by Local Distributor, C. C. Brown, Today.

Increase in production and a decrease in the cost of steel are responsible for a reduction of about $200 in the cost of Studebaker cars, it was announced this morning by C. C. Brown, No. 132 west Church street, local distributor.

The new price on the Studebaker roadster is $1,115, Light Six touring car, $1,150; sedan, $1,850. With a goal of 500 cars a day the company has increased its production to 470 cars a day at the present time which is a decided increase over the 250 cars a day put out by the company some time ago.

Recalling Who They Are.

Marion Stella Platt has been granted a divorce from Francis Platt in the Marion county courts, says Thursday's Galion Inquirer. Mrs Platt was a show girl who appeared in Galion at one time, when she married Platt. She is the woman whose baby was found dead in bed, and for whose death, John Morrow, formerly of this city, was found guilty. There was quite a difference in the ages of the Platts and their marriage was not a happy one.

WITH THE PUGS

Dempsey Preferred.

Cleveland, Sept. 9.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, today is preferred choice for referee of the championship featherweight battle to be fought here September 17, between the title holder, Johnny Kilbane, and Danny Frush of Baltimore. In a wire last night to Promoters McGinty and Deutsch, Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, agreed to let Dempsey officiate for $2,000, plus expenses. It is probable that the promoters will accept Dempsey's proposition, providing the Cleveland boxing commission, which meets today, ratifies Dempsey's appointment.

In the line-up of the players in the City Bowling league teams carried in Thursday's Star the name of Archie Williams should have appeared as captain of the Indians instead of E. W. Schoenlaub. Walter S. Guthrie will play with the Giants it was announced at the Y. M. C. A. building. E. C. Higgins has been secured to act as umpire for the City teams this season. The alleys will be ready for practice Saturday.

YOUNGSTOWN NEGRO PAYS THE PENALTY

Executed in Ohio Penitentiary This Morning.

Columbus, Sept. 9.—Electrocution of Sylvester Brown, twenty-seven, negro, took place at the penitentiary here at 1:07 this morning. When Brown met death in the electric chair, he was clasping a Bible and was pleading for God's mercy. He was convicted of murdering Patrolman Alexander R. Warren, Youngstown, May 2, last.

In accordance with custom, Warden Thomas turned down the joint wish of Brown and his wife, Mattie, that she be permitted to witness the electrocution. Previous to the electrocution, the warden announced that he would not knowingly permit relatives of either a murderer or the persons murdered to witness an electrocution.

Brown's body will be shipped to Youngstown for burial. Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Lizzie Washington and a half-sister, Miss Lena Washington, Williamson, South Carolina.

Brown fired four bullets into Officer Warren's body when the patrolman ordered him and three other negroes to halt.

The negroes had robbed a store and were in the neighborhood of another place where they proposed to commit a crime when they were met by Patrolman Warren. They escaped, but were captured a few days later.

Sets Up $1,530.71 Claim.

An answer and cross-petition setting up a claim for $1,350.71 was filed in the common pleas court Thursday afternoon by the Marion Building, Savings & Loan company in the foreclosure suit of Fred Haberman, Harry W. Haberman and Fred Haberman Jr., against Jesse E. Berry and the Marion Building, Savings & Loan company. The answer and cross-petition were filed through Scofield, Durfee & Harder. The plaintiffs are suing for judgment in the sum of $336 on a note secured by mortgage on lot No. 1,525 in Henry Trego's third addition to Marion and foreclosure of the mortgage.

In the cross-petition the building and loan company states Jesse E. Berry gave it a note for $1,300 April 24, 1920 secured by mortgage on the property mentioned in the petition and there is now due on the note $1,530.71. Judgment for that amount is asked. On motion of the plaintiff, the former decree of partition and all other orders were set aside in the common pleas court this morning in the partition suit of John F. Ruth against Margaret M. Holding A Husband

BY ADELE GARRISON.

Something in me to-day appeared quiet and keen for me, warm. It made me so glad. Why, it made me look at him [illegible] thought back wistfully to the old days when I had just [illegible] that there was [illegible] I could see

There he sat [illegible] Miss Gregory of Brooklyn, a woman who has written [illegible] which made [illegible] of that [illegible] his comfort. [illegible]

That [illegible] was for me, warm. It was as my mother, he had [illegible] when I was not four years old for the love of another woman. I had long ago learned from [illegible] That [illegible] all more of the [illegible] I [illegible] that time had been a dim [illegible] in his [illegible] [illegible] service, I knew from [illegible] and Lillian Underwood. [illegible] financial misfortune had come to him during the stressful days when in a South American country he had grappled with and frustrated a plot which menaced the very heart of the government.

In the years since I had become accustomed to think of him as a gentle, somewhat [illegible] and [illegible] most of all weak, and whose prestige was [illegible] But during the few months preceding the sale of the Martin home I had been conscious that, with a distinct improvement in his physical health, had come a rejuvenation of his mind and spirit—that he was becoming once again a figure with which to reckon. And in a mist now was that of a dominant poised personality perfectly conscious of its own power.

At any time during the years we had lived with me I would have run to him, at a sudden unexpected appearance such as the one he had just made, asking what he wanted. But there was something [illegible] elusive about him, something that seemed to set him apart and make him less my father than a man-who-must-be-obeyed. Therefore, I walked sedately to greet him, evincing no curiosity as to his errand.

"Ah! Daughter, dear! Enjoying the new place, I see." His voice was as calm and unhurried as if he had just stepped over to view our happiness in our new home. His very leisureliness made me suspect that something momentous was on foot, for I have seen in him and in his co-worker, Allen Drake, the same tendency to affect deliberation in a moment of great stress. It was as if they paused and flexed their mental muscles for the effort ahead of them.

"Just looking over my new studio, Dad," Dicky indicated the corn-crib with a gesture. Glancing at him, I saw that behind his careless expression his eyes were watching my father intently, and I realized that he shared my intuition as to the importance of my father's errand.

"Ah! Yes. It ought to make a good one," my father replied. "Will it interrupt you too much if I ask you to run me over to Speonk? I find I can get a train from there at four o'clock, and I wish to get to New York as soon as possible. I have had a message which demands immediate attention."

I looked at my watch and made a mental calculation. If I accomplished the trip without speeding I should have to start at once. The thought of Grace Draper's letter obsessed me. Would there be a chance to mail it? Suppose there were an accident to the car and I was delayed in getting back? I assured my father that I could make the trip with him if we started immediately, then turned to Dicky and spoke without reflection.

"Better come with us, and then you can mail that letter at Speonk."

"What letter?" Dicky demanded quickly, with an edge to his voice that brought me up standing mentally. With a furtive glance I saw that with an adroit movement he had turned enough away from my father to enable him to glare at me significantly.

"Why, the letter that—" but Dicky interrupted me.

"To the insurance agent in Marvin?" asked Dicky with well-simulated indifference. "I had forgotten speaking about it. Sure, I'll bring it. But we'd better start pronto if we're going to make Speonk by four. You're all ready to go, aren't you, Madge? We had gas, water and oil put in this morning, so the car is all right."

"Very well," my father assented. "We will start at once then. My bag is already packed, and we can pick it up as we go past the farmhouse. I will not say goodby to Junior for fear of his crying. Try to keep him from fretting for me. I may be gone quite a long time. At least it will be two months before I return."

There was depression in his voice, but none in his manner. I guessed that his idolizing love for Junior and me was tugging against his joy at getting out into the world again. He spoke very little on our run to Speonk, but when he kissed me goodby and wrung Dicky's hand he uttered a sentence that startled us both:

"I can mail that letter for you in New York if it will be of any service to you," he said.

SPANISH DOUBLOONS

CHAPTER I.

An Aunt Errant.

Never had life seemed more fair and exciting than at the moment when Aunt Jane's letter descended upon me like a bolt from the blue. The fact that she was taking a vacation from Aunt Jane. Being an orphan, I was supposed to be under Aunt Jane's wing, and this was the merest polite fiction. I am sure that no hen with one chicken worries about it more than Aunt Jane about Aunt Jane. I had spent the last three years, since Aunt Susan died and left Aunt Jane with all the world and no one to look after but me, in snatching her from the brink of disaster. Her most recent and narrow escape was from a velvet-mannered person of half her years who turned out to be a convict on parole. She had her handbag packed for the honeymoon when I confronted her with the unpleasant fact. When she came to she was bitter instead of grateful, and went about for weeks presenting a spectacle of blighted affections which was too much for the most self-loving conscience. So it ended with my packing her off to New York, where I wrote to her frequently and gaily, urging her not to mind me but stay as long as she liked.

Meanwhile I came up to the ranch for a long holiday with Bess and the baby, a holiday which had already stretched itself out to Thanksgiving, and threatened to last until Christmas.

Left to Aunt Jane, my state of mind was fatuously calm. She was staying with cousins, who live in a suburb that are frightfully respectable. I am sure they numbered no convicts among their acquaintance, or indeed any one from whom Aunt Jane was likely to require rescuing. And if it came to a retired missionary I was perfectly willing.

But the cousins and their respectability are of the passive order, whereas to manage Aunt Jane demands active and continuous action. Hence the bolt from the blue above alluded to.

I was swinging tranquilly in the hammock, I remember, when Bess brought my letters and then hurried away because the baby had fallen downstairs. Unwarned by the slightest premonitory thrill, I kept Aunt Jane's letter till the last and skimmed through all the others.

At last I came to Aunt Jane. I tore open the envelope and drew out the letter—a fat one, but then Aunt Jane's letters are always fat. Nevertheless, as I spread out the close-filled pages I felt a mild wonder. The writing so large, so black, so staggering, so madly underlined, must indicate something above even Aunt Jane's usual emotional level. Perhaps in sober truth there was a misdictionary—

Twenty minutes later I staggered to Bess' room.

"Hush!" she said. "Don't wake the baby!"

"Baby or no baby," I whispered savagely, "I've got to have a time-table. I've for the city tonight to catch the first steamer for Panama!"

Bess, while the baby slumbered I packed, I explained. This was absurd; not that Bess is as a general thing obtuse, but because the picture of Aunt Jane embarking for the wild, lone isle of the Pacific at the head of a treasure-seeking expedition was enough to shake the strongest intellect. And yet, amid the welter of ink and eloquence which filled the fateful pages, there was the cold hard fact confronting you. Aunt Jane was going to look for buried treasure, in company with one Violet Higglesby-Browne, whom she sprung on you without the slightest explanation, as with alluding to the queen of Sheba or the Siamese twins. By beginning at the end and reading backward—Aunt Jane's letters are usually most illegible that way—you managed to piece together some explanation of Miss Higglesby-Browne and her role in the scheme of things. It was through Miss Browne, whom she had met at a lecture upon Soul-Development, that Aunt Jane had come to realize her claims as an Individual member of the Cosmos, also to discover that she was by nature a woman of affairs, with a talent for directing large enterprises, although adverse influences had hitherto kept her from recognizing her powers. There was a significance in these "adverse influences," though whether they meant the family lawyer I was not sure. Miss Higglesby-Browne, however, had assisted Aunt Jane to find herself, and as a consequence Aunt Jane, for a comparatively trifling outlay needed to finance the Harding-Browne expedition, would shortly be the richer by one-fourth of a vast treasure of Spanish doubloons. The knowledge of this hoard was Miss Higglesby-Browne's alone. It had been revealed to her by a dying sailor in a London hospital, whither she had gone on a mission of kindness—you gathered that Miss Browne was precisely the person to take advantage when people were helpless and unable to fly from her. Why the dying sailor chose to confide in Miss Browne the repository of his secret I don't know—this still remains for me the unsolved mystery. But when the sailor closed his eyes the secret and the map—of course there was a map—had become Miss Higglesby-Browne's.

Miss Browne now had clear before her the road to fortune, but unfortunately it led across the sea and quite out of the route of steamer travel. Capital in excess of Miss Browne's resources was required. London proving cold before its great opportunity, Miss Browne had shaken off its dust and come to New York, where a mysteriously potent influence had guided her to Aunt Jane. Through Miss Browne's great organizing abilities, not to speak of those newly brought to light in Aunt Jane, a party of stanch comrades had been assembled, a steamer engaged to meet them at Panama, and it was ho, for the island in the blue Pacific main!

With this lyrical outburst Aunt Jane concluded the body of her letter. A small cramped postscript informed me that it was against Miss H.-B.'s wishes that she revealed their plans to anyone, but that she did want to hear from me before they sailed from Panama, where a letter might reach her if I was prompt.

"And of course," I explained to Bess as I hurled things into my bags, "if a letter can reach her so can I. At least I must take the chance of it. What those people are up to I don't know—probably they mean to hold her for ransom and murder her outright if it is not forthcoming. Or perhaps some of them will marry her and share the spoils with Miss Higglesby-Browne. Anyway, I must get to Panama in time to save her."

"Or you might go along to the island," suggested Bess.

I paused to glare at her.

"Bess! And let them murder me, too?"

"Or marry you—" cooed Bess.

One month later I was climbing out of a lumbering hack before the Tivoli hotel, which rises square and white and imposing on the low green height above the old Spanish city of Panama. In spite of the melting tropical heat there was a chill fear at my heart, the fear that Aunt Jane and her band of treasure-seekers had already departed on their quest.

I crossed the broad gallery and plunged into the cool dimness of the lobby in the wake of the bellboys who, discerning a helpless prey, had swooped en masse upon my bags.

"Miss Jane Harding?" repeated the clerk, and at the cool negation of his tone my heart gave a sickening downward swoop. "Miss Jane Harding and party have left the hotel!"

"For—the island?" I gasped.

He raised his eyebrows. "Can't say, I'm sure." He gave me an appraising stare. Perhaps the woe in my face touched him, for he descended from the eminence of the hotel clerk where he dwelt apart sufficiently to add, "Is it important that you should see her?"

"I am her niece. I have come all the way from San Francisco expecting to join her here."

The clerk meditated, his shrewd eyes piercing the very secrets of my soul.

"She knew nothing about it," I hastened to add. "I intended it for a surprise."

This candor helped my cause. "Well," he said, "that explains her not leaving any word. As you are her niece, I suppose it will do no harm to tell you that Miss Harding and her party embarked this morning on the freighter Rufus Smith, and I think it very likely that the steamer has not left port. If you like I will send a man to the water-front with you and you may be able to go on board and have a talk with your aunt."

Did I thank him? I have often wondered when I waked up in the night. I have a vision of myself dashing out of the hotel, and then the hack that brought me is bearing me away. Bellboys hurled my bags in after me, and I threw them largess recklessly. Madly we clattered over cobbled quays. Out on the smooth waters of the roadstead lay ships great and small, ships with stripped masts and smokeless funnels, others with faint gray spirals wreathing upward from their stacks. Was one of these the Rufus Smith, and would I reach her—or him—before the thin gray feather became a thick black plume? I thought of my aunt at the mercy of these unknown adventurers with whom she had set forth, helpless as a little fat pigeon among hawks, and I felt, desperately, that I must reach her, must save her from them and bring her safe back to shore. How I was to do this at the eleventh hour, plus about fifty-seven minutes, as at present I hadn't considered. But experience had taught me that once in my clutches Aunt Jane would offer about as much resistance as a slightly melted wax doll. She gets so soft that you are almost afraid to touch her for fear of leaving dents.

So to get there, get there, get there, was the one prayer of my soul.

I got there. In a boat hastily commandeered by the hotel clerk's deputy. We brought up under the side of the little steamer, and the wide surprised face of a Swedish deckhand stared down at us.

"Let me aboard! I must come aboard," I cried.

Other faces appeared, then a rope-ladder. Somehow I was mounting it—a dizzy feat to which only the tumult of my emotions made me indifferent. Bare brawny arms of sailors clutched at me and drew me to the deck. There at once I was the center of a circle of speechless and astonished persons, all men but one.

"Well?" demanded a large brassy voice. "What's this mean? What do you want aboard my ship?"

"I want my aunt," I explained.

"Your aunt?" he roared. "Why the devil should you think I've got your aunt?"

"You have got her," I replied with firmness. "I don't see her, but she's here somewhere."

The captain of the Rufus Smith shook two large red fists above his head.

"Another lunatic!" he shouted. "I'd as soon have a white horse and a minister aboard as go to sea in a floating bedlam!"

As the captain's angry thunder died away came the small, anxious voice of Aunt Jane.

"What's the matter? Oh, please tell me what's the matter!" she was saying as she edged her way into the group. Her eyes, round, pale, blinking a little in the tropical glare, roved over the circle until they lit on me. Right where she stood Aunt Jane petrified. Her poor little chin dropped until it disappeared altogether in the folds of her plump neck, and she remained speechless, stricken, immobile as a wax figure in an exhibition.

"Aunt Jane," I said, "you must come right back to shore with me." I spoke calmly, for unless you are perfectly calm with Aunt Jane you fluster her.

She replied only by a slight gobbling in her throat, but the other woman spoke in a loud voice, addressed not to me but to the universe in general.

"The Young Person is mad!" It was an unmistakably British intonation.

This, then, was Miss Violet Higglesby-Browne. I saw a grim, bony, stocky shape, in a companion costume to my aunt's. Around the edges of her cork helmet her short iron-gray hair visibly bristled. She had a massive head, and a seamed and rugged countenance which did its best to live down the humiliation of a ridiculous little nose with no bridge.

But what riveted my eyes was the deadly glare with which hers were turned on me. I saw that not only was she as certain of my identity as though she had guided me from my first tottering steps, but that in a flash she had grasped my motives, aims and purposes, and meant once for all to face, out-general and defeat me with great slaughter.

So she announced to the company with deliberation: "The Young Person is mad!"

It nettled me extremely.

"Mad!" I flung back at her. "Because I wish to save my poor aunt from such a situation as this? It would be charitable to infer madness in those who have led her into it!" When I reviewed this speech afterward I realized that it was not, under the circumstances, the best calculated to win me friends.

"Jane!" said Miss Higglesby-Browne in deep and awful tones, "the time has come to prove your strength!"

Aunt Jane proved it by uttering a shrill yelp, and clutching her hair with a reckless disregard of its having originally been that of a total stranger. So severe were her shrieks and struggles that it was with difficulty that she was borne below in the arms of two strong men.

I had seen Aunt Jane in hysterics before—she had them that time about the convict. I was not frightened, but I hurried after her—neck and neck with Miss Browne. It was fifteen minutes before Aunt Jane came to, and then she would only moan. I bathed her head, and held her hand, and did all the regulation things under the baleful eye of Miss Browne, who steadfastly refused to go away, but sat glaring like a gorgon who sees her prey about to be snatched from her.

In the midst of my ministrations I awoke suddenly to a rhythmic heave and throb which pervaded the ship. Dropping Aunt Jane's hand I rushed on deck. There lay the various pieces of my baggage, and in the distance the boat with the two brown rowers was skipping shoreward over the ripples. As for the Rufus Smith, she was under way, and heading out of the roadstead for the open sea.

I dashed aft to the captain, who stood issuing orders in the voice of an aggrieved fog-horn.

"Captain!" I cried, "wait; turn around! You must put my aunt and me ashore!"

He whirled on me, showing a crimson angry face. "Turn around, is it, turn around?" he shouted. "Do you suppose I can loaf about the harbor here a-waitin' on your aunt's fits? You come aboard without me askin'. Now you can go along with the rest. This here ship has got her course set for Frisco, pickin' up Leeward island on the way, and anybody that ain't goin' in that direction is welcome to jump overboard."

That is how I happened to go to Leeward island.

Tomorrow is Saturday and then there will be only one more Saturday before school starts and Saturday will be the only day a fella will have. When me and Jubilee had climb out of the manure hole this morning and we had all went to the pasture we was talking things over and I said we must do all we can between now and school because when school opened up we would not have any time to do things in and I said I was going out back of the poor house and out to Big Creek and down to the breakwater and over to Wonham's beach today, and Frenchy said them places was so far we would all be tired out and I said he could get a saddle and bridle and put it on a caterpillar and ride it and he would not be so tired, and then they all hoorawed him till he got red and went home, and they all slapped me on the back and said that was certainly handing it to him, and then I told them that my mother had borrowed my quarter, and when they found out that I did not have anything to spend they stopped slapping me on the back, and they asted me how come she knowed I had it and when I told them Nibs looked at me like he was sorry for me and said, "You are certainly a brite kid—all but your mouth." I thought so too, but he did not need to say so and I began to work my arm up and down by my side and to put out my chin and he said, "Gee, can't you take a joke." And then we went out to the slippery sticks and stopped and talked to the poor housers through the high picket fence, but the old lady that let me try her false teeth that time don't seem to be there any more. I guess the one that the people all said was the bad boy of her family has come back with a fortune and tooken her away. If my mother is ever in the poor house when I come back from being a pirut that is the way I will do, and I will help her in my auto, and my ant will be standing with her nose sticking out between the pickets looking at me and the tears streaming down her cheeks and I will grin at her and put my thumb on my nose at her, and I will take my mother to the new house I have built for her with a bathroom in it, and she will tell all her friends that it was built for her by her son who is one of the leading pirats of the world; and mebby Younlss will come over to hear my mother talk about me and she will be sorry she got mad because I would not let her have the blanket when I did not have anything else. We certainly done a lot of things today and me and Jubilee was so tired at supper that my father let me go right to bed. I will leave him in the poor house alongside of my ant. I guess there ain't any way to hold back school time.

GARIS' BEDTIME STORIES

UNCLE WIGGILY AND NANNIE'S FLAPPER.

[BY HOWARD R. GARIS.]

[Copyright 1921, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]

Uncle Wiggily was hopping along through the woods one day, thinking perhaps he might pay a visit to the hollow stump school and listen to the lady mouse teacher hear the lessons of the animal children, when, all of a sudden, the bunny rabbit gentleman heard a sad voice saying:

"Oh dear! I can't go on! I've got to miss and I don't want to!"

The words seemed to come from behind a sassafras bush, and carefully looking over the top—to be ready to run in case the skillery scallery alligator should be there—Uncle Wiggily took a look.

But he only saw Nannie Wagtail, the goat girl, and Nannie seemed to be in trouble. She sat on a log and was looking at one of her feet on which she wore a black shoe.

"What's the matter, Nannie?" asked Uncle Wiggily suddenly.

"Oh dear! How you frightened me!" bleated the little goat girl. "I had no idea you were watching me!"

"I wasn't," Uncle Wiggily answered. "I just hopped along, but I happened to hear you say you were going to miss something."

"Yes, it's school!" bleated Nannie in a sad voice. "I have a flapper and I'll have to go back home! I can't go on to school and I did so much want to, for I know my spelling lesson just perfectly."

"What did you say you had?" asked Uncle Wiggily, wondering if he had heard rightly.

"A flapper," answered Nannie, slowly wagging her hoof to and fro.

"What in the world is a flapper?" asked the bunny gentleman.

"It's when the sole of your shoe comes loose and it goes clip flap, back and forth, making a snapping sound—that's a flapper," answered Nannie.

"Oh, you mean that kind of a flapper!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I thought you meant the paper snappers the animal boys sometimes make to pop like firecrackers. I was going to say the lady mouse teacher surely wouldn't want you in school with one of those."

"No, and she won't want me in school with a shoe flapper, either," spoke Nannie. "Every time I walked to the blackboard my loose sole would go flip-flap and all the children would laugh."

"Yes," agreed Uncle Wiggily, "I suppose they would. But couldn't you take off your shoe, Nannie? I'd leave it at the six and seven cent store for you to be mended."

"Oh, no, Uncle Wiggily!" cried Nannie. "I can't take off my shoe with the flapper sole because—I have a hole in my stocking!" and she whispered the last words. "Mother told me to mend it but I forgot," went on Nannie. "Oh, dear! I shall have to go back home and get on another pair of shoes that haven't any flapper soles. Then I can come to school, but I'll be late."

"Never mind," said Uncle Wiggily kindly. "I'll go home with you while you change your shoes, and then I'll go to school with you and tell the lady mouse all how it happened."

This made Nannie feel better, and soon she and Uncle Wiggily were hopping along through the woods together. And as Nannie trotted along the loose sole of her shoe went: "Flip! Flap! Flop!"

It made such a funny noise, and Nannie looked so queer as she held her hoof up in the air every now and then, that Uncle Wiggily had to sit down and laugh.

"Why are you giggling?" asked Nannie.

"Because you hold your leg in such a queer way every time just before you put your hoof down," said the bunny.

"I have to do that so I won't step on the flapper," explained Nannie. "If I'm not careful the sole of my shoe doubles up and makes a lump. Oh, flappers are dreadful!"

"Well, I don't know what flappers are, but I know Uncle Wiggily thinks I'm dreadful!" suddenly croaked a harsh voice, and out from behind a bush jumped the Funny Fox. "I'm going to nibble ears!" he cried.

Uncle Wiggily jumped up! Nannie caught the bunny uncle by the paw and crying: "Come on!" ran with him down hill, her loose sole going "flip, flap, flop!" and Nannie sort of hopping on one hoof and holding the sole from doubling up.

"Oh! Stop! Stop!" cried the Fox. "No stop!"

"Stop! And have you nibble our ears? I guess not!" said Uncle Wiggily.

"No! No! I mean for Nannie to stop making that flapper flap!" laughed the Fox. "And, as true as I'm telling you he had to laugh so hard at Nannie's funny shoe flapper that he had to sit on a log. "Ha! Ha! Ho! Ho!" gurgled the Fox, and he doubled up with laughter, turned a somersault and fell off the log and there he lay, laughing. So Uncle Wiggily and Nannie had time to run safely away and their ears weren't nibbled at all.

So you see that some times a flapper is a good thing. And when Nannie had changed her shoes Uncle Wiggily took her to school and the lady mouse teacher excused her, so everybody was happy, except maybe the Fox. And he was laughing, anyway.

WANTS TO HELP OTHERS WHO ARE IN THE SAME CONDITION

"I had been so nervous for a long time that I could not get any restful sleep," said W. M. Wigginton who resides at 804 Napoleon street, Johnstown, Pa., and who is one of the city's most substantial citizens. "This caused me to be tired in the morning and I had that draggy and run down feeling. Coupled with these troubles I had a poor appetite; my digestion was in bad shape and I suffered severe pains in my back so that I could not work. On top of it all my kidneys did not work right. I finally got a bottle of Nerv-Worth and took it as directed and now I want to tell you that I am pleased to say I am all right again. My appetite and digestion are good, I sleep soundly and my nervousness is gone, I am no longer suffering with pains in my back and my kidneys are acting properly. I am making this statement for the benefit of others in the same condition so that they will know what Nerv-Worth will do." This statement in itself tells the whole story. If your nerve force is low, your whole system suffers. If you are not enjoying perfect health as you should give Nerv-Worth a trial and if your first bottle does not benefit you, your money will be refunded. Be sure to get the genuine in the large bottle which comes only in the $1.00 size. Sold by Schmidt & Co and all leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

BUFFALO HERDS INCREASING.

Just when we have become accustomed to the thought that the buffalo, once so common in western United States, is for all practical purposes extinct, it is announced on highest authority that this animal is multiplying so fast in the Yellowstone park region as to have become a problem.

We had formulated theories which explained to a nicety the cause of the decline of the buffalo. We had contended ourselves with the fact that due to man's encroaching on the domains of this animal it was now to be put into a class with the mastodon and the four-toed horse. It would be only a question of time before the real article in the way of buffalo robes would be gone from the face of the earth.

To our amazement, however, we learn that the herd in Yellowstone park is increasing so rapidly that even within this large area it will be difficult to get sufficient food for these animals when snow covers their grazing pastures in the winter. There is every indication that the increase will be continuous, in which event it will be necessary to transfer these animals in great numbers to other parks.

Of course, they will never become so numerous as they were in the days of Kit Carson and Buffalo Bill. In those days the western plains swarmed with these animals; even if we liberally discount what those men have told us of the abundance of buffaloes, we are inclined to believe that it must have been next to impossible to shoot off a rifle on the western plains without hitting half a dozen buffaloes.

In those days buffaloes and buffalo hunting were American institutions. The European who came to look us over but dared not venture far enough into the "Wild West" to sight a herd of buffaloes, had not seen all of America. Let us hope that this animal continues to increase, so that in our school geographies we need no longer write under a picture of it the sad legend, "almost extinct."

THE CIGARET AGAIN.

When you read that 46,005,900,000 factory-de cigarets were consumed in this country last year you, if you have any prejudice against the little comforters, may conclude that the U. S. A. is going to ruin about as fast as possible. You knew, of course, that about everybody smokes cigarets and that the habit is rapidly spreading.

But you never suspected that the consumption mounted to such a huge total as is disclosed by a census bureau report. Yet the truth is not what it seems from the bald statement made. There is more room for expansion of the cigaret habit than there is for reform.

Only a pitiful twelve per cent. of the population, probably less, smokes the things. It's a very moderate user of cigarets who manages less than ten a day on the average. That means 3,650 per annum per smoker. A simple calculation reveals the magnificent total of approximately $7,000,000 citizens and citizenesses who let 'em alone.

ONE-MAN POWER.

We know little of one-man power in this country.

Thank heaven!

One robin doesn't make a summer.

One man doesn't make or mar a business.

Some one man may be a great advantage to an enterprise; but he's seldom, if ever, a necessity to that enterprise.

He may think he is—but he isn't; persons may say he is—but he isn't.

There are other pebbles on the beach—that with just a little polish begotten of friction will shine just as bright as he.

If you desire to know just how much of a place you fill in the general scheme of things, just how much you would be missed should you pass down and out—well, try the old trick of poking your finger in the water and then pulling it out and looking for the hole left.

Some of us are wheels in the vast machinery of modern industrial, commercial, financial and social life—and some of us are only cogs to the wheels; but all of us are simply parts of the machinery; none of us but can easily be replaced by similar parts.

Washington died.

But the country continued to expand and progress.

Lincoln passed away.

But the country recovered and went forward.

There was hardly a financial ripple when the great J. Pierpont Morgan disappeared from Wall street.

Fathers die.

But their families continue to exist.

Heads of corporations retire.

But the corporations go right on in business.

Superintendents resign.

But the business continues to function.

No one individual is absolutely necessary to the success of anything.

One-man power doesn't exist.

It may be assumed; but the assumption is idle.

Speaking on this subject, the editor of the Ohio State Journal remarks:

One may read many varying comments on the probable significance and results of the resignation of four men in the organization of Henry Ford at Detroit. These men are supposed to have quit because they differed with Mr. Ford over business policies he had adopted. Each man had been with the Ford company for a goodly number of years and had been active in the big organization.

There are those who figure it as a calamity when a high officer of a corporation quits. In the minds of many it is possible for one individual to become absolutely essential to the well-being of an organization. But there are others with views quite different. If a large organization is planned aright, there is a competent understudy for every man in an important position.

Yes, and that understudy will be prepared to step right in and take over the responsibilities and activities of the man over him; and, perhaps, fill the place better than did his predecessor.

One-man power doesn't really exist in this favored land.

Thank God!

POETS AND POETRY.

"For voices pursue him by day,
And haunt him by night;
And he listens, and needs must obey,
When the Angel says: 'Write!'"

"What is there in poetry?" asks a daily paper.

I would retort with the question: "What isn't in poetry?"

And what is there that hasn't poetry in it?

Look around you; observe nature, in the large—the sky and sea—sunlit by day, starlit by night; the mountains—snow-capped and rugged; the hills—tree-crowned and rock-ribbed; the valleys—grass-carpeted and sheltered; the plains—flower-decked and rolling; the deserts—sun-baked and barren; the streams—sparkling and clear. Then consider the winged birds, bees and butterflies; the sweet-smelling buds and blossoms; the soft winds and fierce siroccos; the winter snows and summer rains; plants and animals; and humanity itself.

Poetry in all—poetry in everything!

And poets?

It has been said that poets are born—not made.

I would say that poets are born and made.

For no matter how much poetical genius or talent one may possess—he must develop it, train it, improve it; he must learn his craftsmanship.

However, the born poet gives early evidence of his affliction; and seldom gets over it.

When the great hymn-writer, Isaac Watts, was a small boy he delighted in making rhymes. He scribbled verses in his school books; wrote doggerel on the school-house walls; and scratched quatrains in the sand on the shore where he went swimming. His father was a very devout and practical man; he didn't at all believe in the virtues or benefits of poetry. So he set in to take the nonsense out of the imaginative and rather idle Isaac. Isaac received a flogging—a good old-fashioned flogging; but as the cane began to dust his jacket right merrily, indeed—Isaac bellowed lustily:

"Oh! father, do some pity take—e
And I no more will verses make!"

The father was wise enough to understand that the son's case was hopeless; so he gave over any further attempts at compulsory reformation.

Unfortunately, for the peace and good will of the world, all who think they are poets are not poets; yet these self-deluded souls remain firm and happy in their convictions to the end of their lives.

Dean Swift once suggested that a tax be laid on female beauty—claiming, in support of his theory, that a large sum could thus be realized, provided each woman should be permitted to rate her own charms.

Why wouldn't the scheme work well in the case of aspiring bards?

Our government is in need of more money.

Let's put a tax upon the output of our poets—letting each poet say what his products are worth.

I suggest the scheme to our president and congress.

Many of these orders are full carload shipments, and quite a few of them for two and three car- ds. Although running at top ed the Tanlac laboratories are over half a million bottles, or proximately twenty-four carloads ed with orders. This announce- will no doubt be received with at surprise in the drug world. ause business in many lines, pecially in the drug and medicine siness has been off from 40 to per cent.

Agents in Every Town.

One druggist in every city, town d village in the United States and nada where agencies have not al- dy been established will be award- the exclusive publicity agency Tanlac within the next thirty s. These agencies will carry h them a big publicity campaign exclusively for the one druggist in each city and town who secures the agency.

Tanlac is going right ahead more vigorously than ever before. For Tanlac there is no such thing as business depression. In fact, Tanlac does not believe there is such a thing as hard times; at least, not in the drug business. Things are getting better every day. In a few weeks' time crops will begin to move. Hundreds of millions of dollars will be put into circulation, and business will soon be back on a better and sounder basis than in years.

Notice to Dealers.

Many wholesalers and manufacturers stopped pushing at the very first sign of a dark cloud. The result being that many drug lines slumped. Tanlac went right ahead and the result has been that more Tanlac has been sold during the first six months of the present year than in any corresponding period in the past.

Line up with Tanlac. Connect with a product that sells no matter how the times, because of its superior merit.

Although Tanlac has been on the market over six years, it is an actual fact that more Tanlac is being sold today with the same amount of advertising than during any time in the past.

TOO RELIGIOUS

The International Sunday-School Lesson for September 11 is "Paul in Athens." —Acts 17: 16-34.

BY WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

There is such a thing as being "too religious." Even a community, like an individual, may develop this fault. The greatest authority on Christianity that ever lived, the Apostle Paul, criticized Athens as being "too religious." When spiritual subtleties and theological niceties and barren speculation take the place of simple faith and holy living, then the condemnation, "too religious," falls.

Most of us know men of this sort: they do not weigh a pound in shaping the opinion and life of their associates, they are disregarded by normal persons in the ordinary relations of life, yet they are wrapped up in the phrases and ecstasies of "spirituality." They are "too religious" because their beliefs are not working out in the applied righteousness. Zion City, Illinois is an instance of a community that is "too religious," for in spite of its punctilios and pieties, it contributes nothing to the effective Christian sentiment of the state of Illinois.

Worse yet, and a closer parallel to the condition which Paul met in old Athens, is a case of a large proportion of our modern "intelligentsia." They maintain a sort of intellectual aloofness toward all religion. Spiritual enthusiasm is "bad form" in their eyes. They dabble in all the current cults, from voodooism to occultism, but are not deeply affected by any. Tolerance and indifference are almost synonymous words in the vocabulary. They "pat the Lord on the head" patronizingly, and approve of Christianity as "good for the lower classes," but for themselves, like the Athenians of old, they spend "their time in nothing else, but either to tell or to hear some new thing." Their favorite altar is that dedicated to Novelty. They would rather "be up to date" than be holy. Fashion is to them a greater word than faith. In their conceited and aloof attitude toward the concerns of the spirit, they are "too religious."

This sort of intellectual pride and vagrant-mindedness is harder to affect with the gospel than sheer paganism. Paul found idolatrous and commercially-minded Ephesus, and even corrupt Corinth, easier to evangelize than "intellectual" Athens. These speculative butterflies gather no honey, carry no pollen, withstand no storms. When our prophets for the new day are heard they will be found to have Savonarola indictments for the shallow and barren sophistry of our "cultivated people" who are "too religious" for everyday Christian faith and practice.

Brains and Religion.

Make no mistake here, real intellectual power is as different from this supercilious complacency of the "intellectuals" as the ocean is from a painted bit of stage scenery. These Athenians who treated Paul contemptuously were the "shoddy aristocracy" of an ancient intellectual center whose glory had departed.

Centuries had passed since the golden age of Socrates and Plato. Athens had become a self-conscious, strutting, parroting sort of Greenwich Village. The world's profound thinking, surpassing that of an earlier and more glorious Athens, was done by this very man Paul, whom Athens despised, and by the church fathers who followed him.

To hear a cheap and noisy infidel prate from a soap box on the street-corner, one would never know that Christianity had captured and revivified the brains of the Graeco-Roman world. Profound and subtle thinking, such as puts to blush even the best intelligence of our own day, was done by the giants of the Early church. Vigorous discussion of the most difficult subjects was prevalent among the Christians of the sub-apostolic age. An intellectual awakening of the world has always followed a revival of religion. An open Bible opens brains. Scotland is a land of strong men and original minds because it is a nation reared on the Book.

"Harper's Magazine," "The Atlantic Monthly," "The Saturday Evening Post," and other secular publications, have lately been publishing articles upon religious problems, because the editors know that the subject is of profoundest interest to the most thoughtful minds. Edward S. Martin, who is probably the best essayist writing for the western world, can not keep his pen off the paramount issue of applied Christianity. In scholastic circles many of the most famous brains of today, even in materialistic Germany, are engrossed with questions of the Christian religion. In the realm of affairs we find the most eminent men in the English-speaking world avowed and concerned Christians. Second rate thinkers may scoff at religion, but first-class minds know, with that intellectual giant, Augustine, that, "Thou hast made us for Thyself, O Lord, and our hearts will never be at rest until they rest in Thee."

The Gentleman Preacher.

No mature Christian is ever a boor. Bad manners disappear as Christ's Spirit rules a life. The real graces of culture accompany the grace of God. Fashions forms may be learned by rote, and displayed by coarse and cruel spirits; but the gentle heart is the only source of true gentility. Good people unconsciously make up the only genuine "good society." Paul was a gentleman as well as a soldier-saint. His conduct as well as his letters betray his graciousness. His zeal never extinguished his courtesy; though his courtesy never emasculated his courage.

So when Paul came to Athens he established a point of contact. The great statesman of Christianity, by the way, is a perfect type of the good diplomat, possessed of both suavity and strength, consideration and convictions. As he had presented Christ to the Jews as a fulfillment of their faith, so he offered Him to the Greeks as the satisfaction of their yearnings. They were "prospecting for a faith," he cried. "Eureka!" Like the good missionary that he was, he did not attack existing beliefs, he offered a religion fuller and more comprehensive and satisfactory, which is also the way of modern missionaries. Sitting on the floor of a village inn, surrounded by natives, I have heard a young American missionary quoting the Japanese classics, as he led up to a presentation of Christ, quite as Paul quoted the Greek poets on Mar's hill. They found common ground on which to stand before they attempted to advance into the new and better country.

Religion in the Market Place.

In every community there are quiet, strong men and women who are concerned for the common welfare. They watch the tendencies of the times and measure them by the standards of history and religion. These are the real leaders, the determiners of public opinion. No surer test of the calibre of a person can be applied than this one of solicitude for public weal. Little souls live for little goals, the engrossment of the moment satisfies them. But the great care greatly for the well-being of all mankind. Of course, Paul was of this sort. Athens was a mere way-station on his programme, yet while he waited there for his companions, in order to resume his journey, "his spirit was stirred in him, when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry." Are we also of this mould? We worry about work and wages and taxes; but do we worry about the way the world wags?

There is never a vacation from the practice of religion. Itinerant negro preachers sometimes say, when a month has five Sundays and there is no regular appointment for the fifth, that this is "the preacher's Sunday," when he can sit at home and rest. That sort of reasoning is more common than the saying Paul, who sorely needed a holiday might have, said at Athens, "This is my chance for a holiday and a time of sightseeing. Now I am gratify my scholary taste for visiting the haunts of the great, and for enjoying the city's wonders and works of art." Be it remembered that Paul knew that in this place, as one has said "the human mind had blazed forth with a splendor it has never exhibited elsewhere. In the golden age of its history Athens possessed more men of the very highest genius than have ever lived in any other city."

We know what Paul really did. He talked daily in the market place about Jesus Christ. For the great void in the life of Athens he offered the sufficiency of the crucified and risen Redeemer. Right into the market-place like a Wall Street evangelist he carried his sensational gospel, which ever beongs in the busy marts of life, where men express their personality by their daily interest. So great an impression did he make that certain philosophers led him before the court of the Areopagites, the city council of philosophy, or official board of censors, to set forth his message. There he made what we commonly call "Paul's Address on Mars' Hill," one of the loftiest philosophical presentations of religion ever uttered. Unless it is read and reread and studied, this Lesson will have missed its objective.

Did Paul Fail on Mars' Hill?

A startling and new experience followed. The greatest philosopher who had ever spoken in Athens was "laughed out of court." Arrest, revilings, stonings, prisons, and other violent forms of persecution had become familiar experiences to Paul. But Athens merely dismissed him with a shrug of the shoulders. The people heard him eagerly until he spoke of the resurrection; and sermon on Mars' Hill was a failure I can not so see it. It converted a variety of persons, of whom three are named—Dionysius a member of the council of the Areopagus; and Damaris, who may have been only a woman of the street; and Stephanas, a prosperous Corinthian business man that wins a philosopher, an abandoned woman and a man of affairs can hardly be called barren.

That sermon was the condemnation of Athens; but it has helped save the world.

HEART OF RUSS DEATH ZONES

Pictures of Dumb Misery Drawn by Investigator.

OLD AND YOUNG FALL AS THEY SEEK FOOD

Woman Tells Story of Scenes in and About Samara—Exodus from Villages Stopped.

Samara, Russia, Sept. 8.—A block from the surging mass of traders that fill the market place in this heart of Russia's death district, scenes of grotesque contrasts, a woman sat by the roadside, huddled over a bit of sacking. She turned her face to me; she was dumb with misery. She tried to speak, but her voice was so faint I could not hear her.

I stooped down and pulled back the sacking. A boy of four, the last of her family, lay there. He was dying slowly. Hunger does not hurry. I gave her bread. She laid it aside. It was too late for bread. She asked me for something to bury him in.

A few yards away sat a child of ten. In her arms she held a thing that long since had ceased to look like a baby. Two thin claws clutched, monkey-like, at a cranberry. Life was fighting there, avariciously.

"He fights for milk and I have none," the child said. I gave the tot some bread and milk from a bottle I was taking back to a friend on the boat. The baby seized it greedily. Beyond was a boy of twelve, trying to comfort another baby whose mother was in the hospital. The child was a pitiable picture of hunger. A cossack peasant woman with seven of her own to feed saw him. She snatched up the baby, sat down by the roadside, tore open her dress, nursed the child and went her way. In Saratov I heard two women talking.

"It's all the same wherever we go," one said. "Wherever we go we will die; I want to go back to the farm and die with the others," her companion answered.

There was a little girl with them, too weak to speak.

"I had a boy, too, yesterday," said the mother, "he died last night."

Before we arrived, thousands of peasants had left their villages, but the receipt of seed from the government stopped the exodus.

Samara, Russia, Sept. 8. [Through Moscow and London, Sept. 9.]—Anna Haines, of the American Society of Friends, who has had much experience in administering famine relief in Samara, told the International News service, today, some outstanding facts of the misery now prevailing here and of the headway made by the relief workers.

"Six government relief institutions have been opened since May," said Miss allines. "These have handled mainly the relief work of abandoned children, which is a big task. First of all, the suffering little ones have to be distributed among hospitals and orphanages and the handling of the evacuation trains is a separate task.

"A typical case is that of an institution which planned to take care of sixty cases and now has 400. More arrive daily and the place is flooded with sick and hungry tots.

"It is not unusual to see four children in one bed. Other hundreds have to sleep on the floor. Sheets, blankets and soap are sadly lacking and it is impossible to bathe them properly or even change their clothing.

The children are pitiable sights. Their arms and legs are wasted to the bone by starvation; many of them are so weak they can not stand up. Dysentery is most frequent and there are many cases of measles and influenza, while the cholera epidemic has abated, thanks to the thoroughgoing combative measures taken by the soviet government and aided by the American relief workers.

"I saw eighty-seven children in one room. They were thin and yellow and continually crying. They were terribly plagued by vermin.

"The main meal for the entire group of eighty-seven children consisted of six loaves of black bread, and a bucket of thin soup from potato peelings."

Food Pouring In.

Riga, Sept. 9.—Food is now pouring through the Petrograd harbor for Russian relief in a steady stream. Word was received from Petrograd, today, that the steamship, Phoenix, had arrived in port from Hamburg and delivered the following kilograms of supplies to the American relief administration: Cocoa, 16,267; beans, 67,009; maize, 79,023; condensed milk, 160,722; bacon, 46,415; rice, 55,081 and flour, 160,061.

Since the reopening of the Petrograd harbor 109 ships have landed cargoes of 8,000,000 pounds. Another 50,000,000 pounds of supplies are expected there within a few days, including 20,000,000 pounds of foodstuffs, medicines and clothing for the American relief administration. A shortage of coal is interfering with Petrograd shipping.

MAN IS SENTENCED IN JUVENILE COURT

Given Limit by Judge, Who Regards Sentence Too Light.

Cincinnati, Sept. 2.—John Crane, forty-seven, of east McMicken avenue, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment and fined $1,000 on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a thirteen-year-old girl, by Judge Roettinger in juvenile court. Crane had been arrested in connection with the disappearance of Freda Hornberger, nine, of whom no trace has been found since she left home, some weeks ago, to make a purchase at a bakery.

During Crane's examination, it developed that he had enticed little girls to his room. Authorities, however, are satisfied he knows nothing of the Hornberger girl.

In sentencing Crane, Judge Roettinger said he was sorry that the law wouldn't permit him to make it one dollar fine and 1,000 years imprisonment.

STUDY OF MARS BY NEW METHOD

New and Original Ideas To Be Used by Astronomer.

GREAT TELESCOPE TO BE CONSTRUCTED

Pictures Will Bring Mars Within One and One-Half Miles of Earth.

[BY BEN ALI MACAFEE.]

Villers sur Mer, France, Sept. 9.—The gigantic telescope which I am planning to erect at Charanal, Chile for the study of Mars, is no new invention. Rather it is the grouping of several new and original ideas which will make it the most powerful in the world.

The revolving metal dish filled with mercury from the reflection of which photographs will be taken, is not my invention. It is thirty years old. It was abandoned some time ago, however. The metal container with mercury will be fifty feet in diameter and will rest at the end of the telescope at the foot of the mine shaft. It will enable us to dispense with glass mirror reflectors.

At present, we are only drawing up the plans for the telescope, which will be built in Chile. It will be sunk in a convenient mine shaft which was found near Charanal by my friend, Professor Todd. It is about 300 feet deep and will contain the barrel of the telescope. When sheathed, the diameter of the telescope will be fifty feet.

Mars will be nearer to the earth in 1924 than at any other time in 100 years. For several months in that year, Mars will be at its zenith directly over that part of Chile where our telescope will be located.

I believe that we will be able to prove that life exists upon Mars. It has already been shown that Mars has a surface resembling iron ore. It may be possible to communicate with the planet, but I believe that the only possible method is by flashes of light.

I do not believe that it is possible to communicate by wireless for the electrical waves would lose themselves in the different atmospheres that intervene. Sounds which Professor Marconi recently reported were registered and which were believed by him to have come from Mars, must have come from some other planet nearer the earth than Mars. If they come from any planet at all.

While I will not attempt to communicate with Mars, I shall take thousands of photographs. They will be snap shots with a speed of 9-100 of a second. With Mars at the zenith, Mars will be reflected upon the mercury which, in turn, will reflect it into a praxinoscope at the top of the shaft, which will throw it back into the camera faced at an angle of forty-five degrees. We shall obtain an initial magnification of 50,000 and the pictures will be remagnified upon another screen 50,000 times. The first picture will show Mars about 300 miles away, theoretically and the second, about one and one-half miles away.

Chanaral, Chile, was chosen on account of the wonderfully clear atmosphere. The ground is covered with a nitrate soil and is void of all vegetation. Another reason was that Mars will be directly over that spot several times.

I am confident the experiment will be a success and that we will be able to prove that life exists on Mars. It is possible we may be able to throw light upon the habitation of Martians and the mysterious markings on the face of the planet.

I will have Professor Todd—an American professor of astronomy—with me and the expenses will be divided.

PRESIDENT HELPS THEIR DADDY GET A RAISE

Only these sixteen children remain of the nineteen originally in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Domenic Zacchea. When President Harding saw their picture in a newspaper he wrote Mrs. Zacchea, congratulating her on her family. Mrs. Zacchea replied to the president, telling him her husband made only $29 a week working for a department store. President Harding promised to help the husband. All of the children were born in the United States. The oldest is twenty-two.

LARUE SCHOOLS OPEN WITH CROWDED ROOMS

News from LaRue and Country Round About.

LaRue, O., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—The LaRue public schools opened, Monday morning, with more scholars than rooms to accommodate them. Assignment of lessons were made and school was dismissed until Tuesday morning, when regular work began. Teachers for the year are H. L. Miller, superintendent; B. A. Moore, Miss Ethel Fawn, Rev. G. D. Knapper, Dee Young, Mrs. Lena Gillespie, Miss Florabel Clark, Miss Doris Freeman, Miss Anabel Myers, Mrs. Opal Durnell and Miss Hazel Prettyman.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Shirk entertained at dinner, Sunday, the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Miller, of Byhalia; Mrs. William Haughn and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Shipley, of Richwood.

The annual reunion of the Shirk family was held Monday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shirk. The morning was spent in the exchange of greetings. The dinner, served on the lawn at the noon hour, was the feature of the day's enjoyment, 111 being served. A fine program in which old and young alike took part was rendered and Mrs. J. W. Horne and Rev. F. M. Taylor, who were among the invited guests gave interesting talks. There were representatives of the family from Homer, Michigan; Toledo, Columbus, Kenton, Peoria, Richwood, Morral, Byhalia, Marysville, Hepburn, Somerville, Mt. Victory and Marion. Officers were elected as follows: Charles Holt, Marion, president; T. L. Shirk, LaRue, vice president; Mrs. Otis Corwin, Marion, secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. Frank Wright, sons, Bernard and Francis Raymond, and Mrs. Harry Draper, attended the funeral of Mrs. Ed. Turl, which was held from her late home at Findlay, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Turl was fatally injured Sunday morning, when the auto in which she was riding, in company with her husband and three other persons skidded and turned turtle near the interurban track south of Delaware. The auto party had been to the state fair Columbus, and were returning home when the accident happened. Mrs. Turl was rushed to the hospital at Delaware but only lived a short time.

The new service station which is being erected here by the Standard Oil company is being rapidly pushed to completion and will soon be ready for service.

The Ladies Aid society, of the Methodist church, met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. L. Shirk with a good attendance of the members, and Mrs. Olive Guy, of Plain City; Mrs. Otis Boyd, Mrs. A. E. Wise, Mrs. John Weist and daughter Laverne, present as guests. Mrs. J. W. Horne, Mrs. Shirk, Mrs. B. B. Kilbourn and Mrs. Guy contributed to an interesting program. Mrs. Shirk was assisted in serving and entertaining by her daughter, Miss Florence and Mrs. Aaron Burnell.

The many friends of Rev. J. W. Horne, pastor of the Methodist church at this place for the past three years will be pleased to learn that he has been returned for another year.

Stories of Great Scouts

By Hiram Smith Williams

© Western Newspaper Union.

THE IRON NERVE OF SAM HOUSTON, THE VIRGINIAN

Courage and daring were qualities characteristic of all the scouts who won their right to fame in frontier history, but for iron nerve and pure grit Sam Houston was the peer of them all. Perhaps he inherited his fortitude from his father, who was a soldier in the Revolution; perhaps during his long stay among the Cherokee Indians he learned that a warrior bears pain without flinching.

Houston was a Virginian who had entered the army and risen to the rank of ensign at the outbreak of the Creek war in 1812. Gen. Andrew Jackson, "Old Hickory," had taken the field against the Creeks and, after a series of battles in which the Indians were defeated, they made a last stand at their fortified encampment, Tohopeka, in the Great Horseshoe bend of the Tallapoosa river, Ala.

During the assault on this fort, a barbed arrow struck Houston in the thigh. He tried to pull it out, but failed. The agony was frightful. Calling to a soldier, Houston commanded him to extract the shaft. Twice the man tried and failed, then begged to be relieved of the task when he saw the unspeakable torture he was causing.

"Try again," commanded Houston. "And if you fail, I'll run you through with my sword!"

The third attempt was successful, and as the barbed shaft was torn from the flesh, it was followed by a gush of blood. General Jackson, seeing Houston's wound, ordered him to the rear. The young ensign waited until Jackson had passed on, had a surgeon bind up the wound, and in a few minutes he was back in the thick of the fighting.

The high peak in Houston's adventurous life came in 1836 when, at the head of a little army of 800 Texans, with the battle cry of "Remember the Alamo!" on their lips, he defeated the hordes of Santa Anna, the Mexican dictator, at San Jacinto, and won freedom for Texas. He was elected first president of the Lone Star republic.

At the outbreak of the Civil war, Houston, who was governor of Texas, was bitterly opposed to the secession of that state from the Union. The Confederates forced him to resign. They required all men over sixteen to register and to carry a pass while traveling. Houston refused to do either. Once they stopped him and demanded his pass. "San Jacinto is my pass through Texas!" thundered the brave old man as he rode on.

Houston died at his home in Huntsville July 26, 1863, with the name of Texas on his lips.

COMMISSION ENDS HEARING

Hears Arguments on Merging of Telephone Companies.

OPPOSITION SHOWN TO CONSOLIDATION

Attorney for City of Columbus Fights Merger, So Far as Capital City Is Concerned.

Columbus, Sept. 9.—The state utilities commission, today, concluded its hearing relative to the joint application of the Ohio Bell and the Ohio State Telephone companies for permission to merge their properties into an $81,000,000 consoldiation, to be known as the Ohio Bell Telephone company.

Today's session was restricted to presentation of arguments bearing upon the motion offered by City Attorney Charles Leach, Columbus, that the commission dismiss that part of the joint application affecting the city of Columbus.

Attorney Leach argued that the twenty-five-year franchise now in effect, entered into between the municipal council here and the Ohio State Telephone company, prohibits consolidation of the properties of the companies.

Attorney Karl W. Burr, Columbus, representing the Ohio Bell and E. W. Turner, Dayton, representing the Ohio State company, contended that the franchise referred to by Attorney Leach is not now effective so far as seeking to prohibit merging of the competing companies because of laws subsequently passed providing for consolidation of telephone companies.

They pointed out that at the time the municipal franchise was granted, a state law prohibiting telephone mergers.

The state utilities company took Leach's request under advisement.

An early decision by the commission is expected on the joint application for consolidation.

INDIANA BANK IS LOOTED TODAY

Bandits Get Away with About $25,000, Report Says.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 9.—Four armed masked bandits today held up the Beech Grove bank at the edge of this city, escaping with loot estimated at $25,000. Three of the robbers were white men, the fourth a negro. They escaped in an automobile.

Establishing Court.

Paris, Sept. 9.—Dissatisfied with the results of the German war-criminals court, the French government has established a war-criminal court of its own at Nancy to try German army officers. It was learned today that warrants already have been despatched to Germany summoning General von Oven and General von Montgelas and General von Riedel to Nancy at once. The German officers are accused of killing civilians, looting and incendiarism.

Protest Is Made.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The National Wholesale Grocers' association, today, filed a protest with the department of justice against any modification of the recent court decree which divorced the big packing concerns from their grocery interests.

British experts have estimated that the known available coal fields insure an adequate supply for the normal needs of the world for 4000 years.

Slowly Improving.

Eastport, Me., Sept. 9.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy, is slowly improving from his serious illness caused by exposure after swimming in the icy salt waters of the bay of Fundy, near his summer cottage at Campobello, New Brunswick. He had been bathing in fresh water and the change of water produced a chill which resulted in his illness.

GERMAN MARK IS WORTHLESS

Declaration of Bankers in New York, Today.

GERMAN PRESSES TURNING OUT MARKS

World Is Being Flooded with German Money—Germans Have Purpose in View.

New York, Sept. 9.—The German mark, today, is intrinsically worthless, according to bankers who were interviewed by the International News service.

They agreed that the latest sensational drop in the mark to one cent merely reflects the fundamental condition of inflated currency in Germany and that there can be no real improvement in German exchange until Germany ceases to finance herself by issues of paper marks.

The opinion was expressed that marks will never go back to the pre-war parity of $6.238, but some day will be retired at a much smaller figure.

"As long as the printing presses run, marks will be worth no more than Russian rubles," said Jules S. Bache, head of the stock exchange firm of J. S. Bache & Company. "The Germans haven't stopped the presses and the allies haven't had the sand to make them stop. Germany is simply flooding the world with marks so that the entire world will have a stake in her warfare.

"Yesterday's drop in the mark due to heavy selling of newly-printed marks by the German government to restore its balance in this country," explained Mr. Bache.

"Those heavy balances were depleted to meet the reparations payment due September 1. It's just a case of taking money out of one pocket and putting it in another. There's no real value created."

LAY DELEGATES OF THE METHODIST CHURCH

Open Their Annual Sessions in Circleville Today.

Circleville, Sept. 9.—Lay delegates of the Ohio conference, Methodist Episcopal church, opened their annual sessions here today.

Pastors of the conference, also in annual session here, decided to meet at Logan next year.

The Methodist Orphans' home, Worthington, is crowded and is in need of room, according to Rev. Dr. J. C. Arbuckle, superintendent.

James A. White, superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon league, addressing the conference, said "dry laws enacted by the present state legislature are the best prohibition laws ever passed in Ohio.

To Run for Mayor.

Cincinnati, Sept. 9.—City Auditor George P. Carrel was, this afternoon, selected by the Republican city central committee to be the next candidate for mayor in place of Mayor Galvin, whose illness will not permit him to run for another term.

The New

Fall Modes

Presage a Season of Attractive Costumes, if the Hat Be the Inspiration and Key-Note

EVERYWHERE one notes embroidery—some of it elaborate, much of it the development of French knots of yarn, chenille or ribbozine braid in attractive patterns. Hats for dress wear, sport Spanish veils and scarfs of Chantilly lace; street hats make the most of feathers—coy wings, deftly placed, sweeping glycerined ostrich, haeckel pads and breasts and brims in gorgeous parrot colorings.

Black satin and panne velvet are ultra smart, and duvetynes and felts in warm tones of reds and brown—the reds and browns of autumn-kissed forests—are unbelievably lovely. Appliqued velvet petals on duvetyne; heavy moire ribbon bands inserted in duvetyne and finished with tinsel hemstitching—by these tokens ye shall know the new hats of the autumn—and profit by the knowing.

Miners Encamped In Mills.

Elizabethtown, Ill., Sept. 9—Armed quiet prevailed in Hardin county, with 800 miners reported encamped in the hills a few miles north of town and about half as many deputy sheriffs, private detectives and citizen guards holding the roads and nearby hills. County officials are hopeful that the adjutant general can meet the invading miners and turn them back without bloodshed.

Made Ill by Chicken Salad.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 9—An epidemic of typhoid fever, centralized in Burlington county, was attributed by the state board of health to chicken salad served at a harvest supper in Jacobstown July 27. The board states that 185 virulent cases, involving 116 homes located in 23 municipalities, were due to the salad. Four hundred persons were served at the supper.
